

Developed using the latest dripline engineering technology, the mandate for the D2000 emitter was to build a product that did not compromise on size or features. Using a 14-45% larger inlet area than leading competing emitters the D2000 provides dual directional flows to maximize every inlet unlike conventional emitters that only have a single flow direction.